Wait, ye winds, while I repeat Wait, ye winds, while I repeat
A parting signal to the fleet,
Whose station is at home:
Then waft the sea-boy's simple prayer,
And let it oft be whispered there,
While other climes I roam.

Farewell to Father, reverend hulk, Who, spite of metal, spite of bulk, Must soon his cable slip; But ere he's broken up I'll try The flag of gratitude to fly, In duty to the ship.

Farewell to Mother, first-rate she, Who launched me on life's stormy sea,
And rigged me fore and aft;
May Providence her timbers spare,
And keep her hull in good repair
To tow the smaller craft.

Farewell to Sister, lovely yacht, And whether she'll be manned or not, I cannot now foresee;
But may some oraft a tender prove,
Well found in stores of truth and love,
To take her under lee.

Farewell to Jack, the jolly boat, And all the little craft afloat, In home's delightful bay; When they arrive at sailing age, May wisdom give to them the guage, And guide them on their way.

Farewell to all on life's rude main, Perhaps we ne'er shall meet again,
Thro' stress of stormy weather;
When summoned by the board above,
We'll harbor in the port of love,
And all be moored together.

A TANNER having commenced business in one of the towns of a youthful part of the United States, felt himself very much at a loss for an appropriate sign. After holding much deep and sapient communication with himself he at last fixed upon hanging a calf's tail through a convenient knothole in his door. This he did and came to the conclusion that it was a very good and tarnation clever institution. After a short time he began to notice that a tall, lean man, with a thoughtful face and a bend in his back, was very often intently examining the calf's tail. Day after day brought with it the same long, lean man, who occupied himself with staring at the tail in the same thoughtful manner. The tanner thought the man decidedly "wanting in his upper works," and determined or questioning him as to his purpose. Throwing open his window, therefore, he began-

"Good morning."

"Good morning," answered the stranger, without taking his eyes off

"Fine weather for the time of year," observed the tanner, determined to rouse the mysterious individual.

"Guess it is" said he, in an absent "P'raps you'd like some hides today, mister?" was the next question put to him.

Don't de the reply.

"Reckon then p'raps, you're a par-son?" again remarked the imperturbabel tanner.

" No." "Well, then, mister, what are yer?"

"Why, I'm a philosopher; I've been looking at that tail for a blessed long time, and can't for the life of me, tell how that calf managed to get through that knot-hole. Maybe you'll tell a

THE YOUNGEST SOLDIER IN THE ARMY OF THE CUMBERLAND—HE RECEIVES FROM GEN. ROSECRANS THE BADGE OF THE ROLL or Honor.—Last evening at the Cale-donian supper General Rosecrans exhibited the photograph of a boy who, he said, was the youngest soldier in the Army of the Cumberland. His name is Johnny Clem, twelve years of age, a member of Company C, 22d Michigan Infantry. His home is at Newark, Ohio. He first attracted the attention of Gen. Rosecrans during the review at Nashville, where he was acting as marker for his regiment. His extreme youth (he is quite small for his age) and intelligent appearance interested the General, and, calling him to him, he questioned him as to his name, age, regiment, etc. Gen. Rosecrans spoke encouraginly to the young soldier, and told him to come and see him whenever he came where he was.

He saw no more of the boy until Saturday last, when he went to his place of residence—the Burnet House -and found Johnny Clem sitting on his sofa, waiting to see him. Johnny had experienced some of the vicissitudes of war since last they met. He had been captured by Wheeler's caval-ry near Bridgeport. His captors took him to Wheeler, who saluted him with-

"What are you doing here, you d-d little Yankee scoundrel?"

Said Johnny Clem, stoutly, "General Wheeler, I am no more a d-d scoundrel than you are, sir."

Johnny said that the rebels stole about all he had, including his pocket book, which contained only twentyfive cents. "But I wouldn't have cared for the rest," he added, "if they hadn't stolen my hat, which had three bullet holes it received at Chickamauga."

He was finally paroled and sent North. On Saturday he was on his way from Camp Chase to his regiment, having been exchanged. Gen. Rosecrans observed that the young soldier had chevrons on his arm, and asked the meaning of it. He said he was promoted to a corporal for shooting a rebel Colonel at Chickamauga. The Colonel was mounted, and stopped Johnny at some point on the field, crying, 'Stop, you little Yankee devil!' Johnny halted, bringing his Austrian rifle to an "order," thus throwing the Colonel off his guard, cocked his piece, (which he could easily do, being so short,) and, suddenly bringing it to his shoulder, fired, the colonel falling dead with the bullet through his breast.

The little fellow told his story simply and modestly, and the General deon Johnny's coat. His eyes glistened with pride as he looked upon the badge, and little Johnny seemed suddenly to have grown an inch or two taller, he stood so erect. He left his photograph with Gen. Rosecrans, who exhibits it with pride. We may again hear from Johnny Clem, the youngest soldier in the Army of the Cumberland .- Cincinnati paper.

SPECIAL TO THE DAILY UNION VEDETTE.

Nothing of Kilpatrick's Whereabouts. Nothing officially is known of the whereabouts of Kilpatrick. It is said in well informed circles that on Monday he was in Spottsylvania Court House, which is sixty-five miles from Richmond. An officer who arrived here to-night from the army of the Potomac, reports that when last heard from, he was within eighteen miles of Richmond. This, however, may be mere surmise, there being no communication by which such facts could be ascertained. Custar's move was to strive to draw off the attention of the enemy while Kilpatrick journeyed in another direction. It is supposed if he got a fair start with no danger in the rear he has certainly had sufficient time to reach Richmond, if such was part of the plan of operations.

Southern News.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3d.

Richmond papers announce with unfeigned regret the appointment of Braxton Bragg as Commander-in-Chief of the rebel army, over the head of Gen. Lee; also acknowledge heavy loss of life in Florida.

Exchange of Prisoners.

Washington, March 2d. A correspondence between General Butler and the rebel Commissioner-Gen. Ould, in relation to the exchange of prisoners resulted in the declaration of an exchange, in which it is agreed that all persons who were delivered at City Point, up to the 24th of January, 1864, are exchanged. Sherman's Retreat.

NEW YORK, March 3d.

Richmond papers to Monday last, contain dispatches from Demopolis to the 23d, representing Sherman's forces as making a retrogade movement. Dalton dispatches say the Union force passed through Tunnel Hill on the 26th, and would not probably make a stand nearer than Chickamauga.

Interesting War News.

Longstreet's retreat is partially confessed. A Mobile dispatch of the 23d, says a fire was opened that day upon Fort Powell. Six monitors and four gunboats shelled all day. The Florida affair is made much of, and with reatermined to honor his bravery. He son, but the rebels concede severe gave him the badge of the "roll of losses on their side. Editorials of honor," which Mrs. Saunders, wife of journals before us are full of brag the host of the Burnet House, sewed about bright prospects of the South, and the desperation, demoralization and utter helplesness of the North.

A special to the Times says a report, brought in by deserters to Brandy Station to-day, says that our cavalry have torn up several miles of track of the Central Railroad, between Louisa Court House and Talersville. Deserters further state that the troops dispatched for Richmond, to defend it against our cavalry, were obliged to return, owing to a break in the road. Several bridges were destroyed, and the rebels can't repair the damages in less than ten days, before which we will probably hear of Kilpatrick at

Interesting Scientific Experiment-

In another column will be found a graphic account of a most horrible murder, recently perpetrated in San Francisco. The deed was committed in the night, upon a helpless woman of the town, in the most frequented and populous portion of the city; yet, as has too often been the case, the murderer escaped, apparently leaving no trace behind, whereby he can be identified and brought to punishment. After ransacking the house, wiping his blood-stained hands upon the bed clothes, and rifling the premises of money and valuables, he quietly stole away, and the whole community are shocked at the enormity and boldness of the deed. But science is to be brought to the aid of the detectives, and it is to be hoped that the experiment about to be tried-novel and strange though it may seem-will disclose the perpetrator of this midnight horror.

A number of years ago a French savant informed an incredulous world that, in the last throes of death, the object which presented itself before the dying, always left its perfect image on the retina of the eye, and if the latter were examined with a microscope within thirty hours after death, the image, perfect in all its parts, would be disclosed. The theory was laughed at by some, and disbelieved by nearly all. However, it was suggested that, if true, it might bring to light or at least give a clue to many an assassin who would otherwise escape undetected. We believe the experiment has been several times tried in Europe, but are unaware of any successful results having been attained. From the account published by us to-day, it will be seen that it is to be tested in San Francisco. with the hope of throwing some light on the question of who murdered the unfortunate Mary B. Smith.

From the Sacramento Union we clip the following telegram, giving the latest information as to the progress and partial success of the experiment. The result already attained presents a most remarkable confirmation of the theory of the Frenchman, and bids fair to work a revolution in the methods of detecting crime :

San Francisco, Feb. 25th.

Dr. Sheldon to-day removed an eye of the murdered Mrs. Smith, and after dissecting it. obtained a photograph of the retina. result is the outline of a man; nose, whiskers and legs are discernible, but the picture is not sufficient even for a clue to the identity of the murderer. There was evidently little or no light in the room when the murder was committed. Dr. Sheldon will now remove the scorotic coat and expose the surface of the retina. He expects to get a better picture to-morrow morning, and it is not improbable that a recognizable picture may be obtained. In the meantine the detective force will pursue its investigations. They have obtained some slight clue, the nature of which cannot be divulged.

THEATER To-NIGHT. - Having got through with the sensation style of drama, the management of the City Theater this evening return to the legitimate, and offer a splendid bill. The fine old-fashioned comedy of "Still Waters Run Deep," will be presented, the performance to conclude with the high comedy farce of "Eton Boy." Like Prof. comedy farce of "Eton Bov." Like Prof. Simmons, the Basilicon-when he cuts his head off-both Mr. and Mrs. Irwin will appear. " in two parts " on the same evening.

GLORIOUS NEWS FROM THE EAST .- Our dispatches to-day are more than usually interesting and exciting. The army of the l'otomac is advancing, and Kilpatrick, with his invincible cavalry, is reported to be at the White House, on the Pamunky. The prospect of the capture of Richmond is brighter to-day than at any time since the war com-

DEATH OF A WELL KNOWN PIONEER .-James Grant, one of the earliest pioneers of California, in early times County Recorder of San Francisco, and a well known citizen of that place, died of Erysipelas on the 25th Killed by the Police.

It will be remembered that about four weeks since, one Verlam Dive escaped from the Sait Lake Penitentiary, in which he had been incarcerated on a conviction of theft-The offence, we believe, was stealing some old iron from a brother Mormon. Since his escape, the police have ransacked the town and city without success. On Thursday evening, about 9 o'clock, however, he was discovered on Main street, and on being hailed, started and ran up the street. The police pursued, and coming up with him, opposite the 14th Ward School House, several shots were fired at the running man. One struck him in the back and another in the head, the latter causing instant death. It is said that Dive had vowed that he would not be taken alive, and would rather die than return to the Penitentiary a prisoner. We suppose the police have the right in law to shoot dead an escaping convict, but is rather a summary method of punishment, and except in cases of urgent necessity, they are justified neither in the sight of God nor Man. We much doubt if this was such a case, and trust that the Coroner's Inquest will probe the matter to the bottom. It is a reprehensible practice for policemen to be too free with their pistols, and life, even that of a convict, is too precious to be trifled

Another mysterious Murder in San Fran-

The law-abiding and peaceable community of this good city are every few months startled by the narration of some foul murder, each exceeding the other in horror and brutality. Public comment on the affair in Waverly Place has scarcely ceased, yet we are called upon to give what is known of a similar occurrence that was revealed vesterday morning. Mary B. Smith, a woman of the town, is the victim in the present instance. For some time past she has been living in a small cottage situated on Ross street or Stout's Alley—about midway between Washington and Jackson streets. A few days ago she spoke of her intention to remove to Virginia City, and had completed all her arrangements to start yesterday evening. On Tuesday, she informed the person who furnished her with milk, that she wished him to call the next morning for the amount due him. About half-past six o'clock yesterday morning he called and knocked at the door, but received no answer. After knocking several times with no better success, he observed one of the doors elightly ajar, and on pushing it open he saw the corpse of the murdered woman lying upon the kitchen floor, in her night clothes, covered from head to foot with blood. He immediately proceeded to the Police Office and gave information of what he had discovered. Chief Eurke and a corps of officers hastened to the spot. Our reporter arrived almost as soon as the officers, and was present when they entered the house. The front room was in great disorder. Two trunks, partly filled with female wearing apparel, had evidently been ransacked, and a portion of their contents thrown out upon the floor. The adjoining room was occupied by a bed, the clothing of which was hanging over upon the floor, while the sheet was daubed with fingerprints, showing where the murderer had endeavored to wipe the traces of his crime from his hauds. In the room adjoining, which was used for the purpose of a kitchen, lay the corpse of the woman, her feet extending through the door into a little cupboard in which were stowed some wood and articles of household furniture. Her eyes were wide open, and wore even in death an affrighted and pleading look; one arm was lying partly and the floor of the kitchen covered to the depth of an inch or more with blood. Upon a table beside which the murdered woman , there was a common table-knife incrusted with blood, showing that it was the weapon sed by the person who committed the deed. In the bed-room, upon a small table, was the stump of a cigar, which bad been laid there by the murderer, probably, soon after he en-tered the house; it was the only trace of a man having been there that the officers were able to discover. Soon after the Police had taken possession of the house, Coroner Sheldon arrived and had the body removed to the dead-house, where he immediately made a post mortem examination of it. He found that there were seven wounds upon the head: some of them cutting through the skin. After the murderer had finished his victim he went back to the bed and wiped his hands upon the sheet, but not removing all traces of blood he poured the basin full of water, washed his hands, and returned to the bed again, using the sheet as a towel. After this was completed he ransacked the house for money and valuable jewelry. Taking everything heads!

find he left the house and walked forth into the threats without leaving a trace behind he upon which the Police can build a theory or form a plan. In nearly all its particulars this case is a repetition of the neurder of Augusta Johns, same years ago in Duncat alread and Johns, some years ago, in Dupont street, and the French woman in Waverley Place, less than a year since.

The deceased was a woman of about 36 years of age, and had seen a good deal of life. A native of Massachusetts, while quite young she became a factory girl in Lowell, where she remained for several years, after which she made her appearance in Boston, and for some time was an impate of a house of illsome time was an inmate of a house of illfame. Falling in love with a sailor who was going to China in a merchant vessel, she donned male apparel and shipped as a green hand before the mast. She was fourteen months on the voyage, and never failed to do all that was required of her, and upon arriving in Boston was discharged without her sex being discovered; but she had hardly got ashore before a policeman arrested her for wearing men clothing. Upon being taken before the Recorder, she was consigned to the House of Correction for three months. Upon her release she again shipped as a sailor and made a voyage to Liverpool, thence to China, and finally to San Francisco, where she deserted the ship, put on her proper habiliments, and again entered upon a life of prostitution. She was a woman of strange habits, preferring to live alone, and was supposed by her acquaintances to have quite a snug sum of money laid by. Coroner Sheldon will hold an in-ome new developements will be made. By direction of Chief Burke, a photograph has been taken of the murdered woman's eye, with the intention to test the assertion that the eye of a murdered person retains the description of the last scene prior to death. This, it is pretended, exists upon the retina of the ey for 30 hours after death, and that skillful photographers have thus been the means of discovering criminals.—S. F. Call, Feb. 25th.

A rebel Dispatch. NEW YORK, March 3d.

The Richmond Examiner of the 24th says: An official dispatch was received by the War Department last night from Polk, stating that Sherman's forces had evacuated Meridian, and were retreating in two columns towards Vicksburg. It is supposed that finding his designs on Mobile was thwarted and his cavalry reinforcements intercepted and being in distress for supplies, he was forced to abandon the expedition and take the desperate expedient of retreating through a country stripped of supplies and laid waste by his advance. Whether he can retreat successfully, remains to be seen.

NEW YORK, March 4th.

The Orleans Erg has the following: The Galveston News announces the gunboats Harriet Lane, Clifton and bark Cavallo were sold at auction.

10th of Feb, dates from Sabine Pass state : Rebel Col, Griffia with 800 men holds the place, but the men are unpaid, discontented and deserting.

Special to the Herald, Washington 3d: A note from the Army of the Pomac, dated 9 o'clock and 30 minutes this morning, says messengers from Kilpatrick, Wednesday morning, say his command most thoroughly and effectually destroyed the Virginia Central Railroad, from Beaver Dam to Hanover Junction, and the Richmond and Fredericksburg Railroad from Mattepon bridge to Pamunky river. The entire distance destroyed is over forty miles. Some skirmishing in the front, but it was confined mostly to the right flank of Kilpatrick's command. If the spoliation of the roads is as complete as reported, Lee will be compelled to move his army from its present position to subsist it. Unless the rebels have facilities far greater than we possess for constructing railroads, it will take at least four weeks to repair the damages. All reports concur in estimating that at no time has Lee's army had a larger supply of rations on hand, than from six to ten days. It is reported that Kilpatrick found the country through which he passed almost destitute of food, both for man and beast, and as the troops went in light marching order, they were compelled to push forward with all possible speed. The rain storm on Monday and Tuesday was a great drawback to our movements, but as it has been clear and cool for the past two days, it is hoped his command arrived at a point this evening where it can obtain supplies. The Tribune's dispatch says Kilpatrick reached Louisa Court House Monday night; destroyed the railroad for several miles, and hurried towards Pamunky river. He was to have been in Richmond by Wednesday morning. Confidence in success is weakened only by the arrival in Richmond of Longstreet's vetrans. Kilpatrick has 50,200 picked meu, and for rapidity of movement movement movement meu, and for rapidity of movement movement

Another dispatch reports the arrival of one of Kilpatrick's scouts, who left our forces within fourteen miles of vichmond, and states a junction is formed with Butler's forces. They had destroyed the pike and railroad in their rear, and had encountered no serious opposition. Deserters confirm the destruction of the bridge over the Pumunky, and that Lee sent a formidable force of cavalry and artillery to see what was the matter. They also tate that when Gen Custar was ascertained to be in rear of Charlotts ville, Ewell's whole corps was sent there to resist our advance.

This afternoon the Star says it has information to the effect that Kilpatrick, with a picked force of cavalry, had arrived at White House, and formed a junction with a force sent up the Peninsular. This news was brought by two scouts; it is believed in the army.

The gunboat Wateree went to sea esterday; its supposed destination is San Francisco.

Kilpatrick's Expedition.

NEW YORK, March 3d. Special to the Herald from headquarters army of the Potomac, 29th: Kilpatrick at the head of a large cavalry force left this place on Saturday eve, on his grand expedition. The strength of the entire command we do not deem judicious to publish at present. On Saturday night the command encamped at old serdersville, on the Fredricksburg and Orange Court House plank road, eight miles south of the Rapidan. On Sunday morning his force demonstrated in front of the enemys works on Mine Run; deployed as infantry in order to cause the enemy to masse in that locality to resist an attack, in this capacity they acted all day, at night rested in a retired position between Verdersville and Robinson's Tavern. At 3 o'clock on Monday morning Kilpatrick took up his line of march southward, towards the junction of the Va. Central and Richmond and Fredericksburg Railroads, arriving at Spottsylvania Court House just at dark. From this point Col. Dahlgreen with a detachment of cavalry was dispatched to Fredericksburg Hall, midway between the junction of the above named roads and Gordensville, where had been parked the whole rebel reserve of artillery. Col. Dahlgreen was to have destroyed the artillery, roads and telegraph lines, and then rejoin Kilpatrick.

A dispatch dated the 1st says: Last evening the expedition was heard from, then everything was going on swimmingly, according to programme. Fredericks Hall is forty miles per rail from Richmond.

Porring THE QUESTION.—We have heard of many case of popping" under very singular circumstances; the eccentric, the abrupt the business-like, and a hundred other styles. Of the eccentric, we could cite the case of a well-known merchant, who, one day dining at a friend's house, sat next to a lady who possessed rare charms of conversation. The merchant did not possess the faculty in a very rare degree, but he could do that which was next best, he could appreciate an appreciation, which he endeavored to show by the following mode of action:
"Do you like toast, Miss B——?"

"Yes," responded the lady, slightly surprised at the question. "Buttered toast?"

"Yes."

"That is strange; so do I. Let us get married."

There cannot be much doubt that the lady was taken slightly aback at this, a fact that did not prevent the marriage from coming off in a month afterwards, nor the accession of the lady to one of the finest establishments in the city.

As a specimen of the abrupt, we shall cite the case of a gentleman who had retired from business at the age of forty, and built him a beautiful house, determined to enjoy life to the utmost. One day a friend was dining with him and said half jokingly:

"You have everything here that heart can desire but a wife."

"That's true. I must think of it," and then relapsed into silence for a few minutes, at the end of which time he arose, begged to be excused for a short time and left the room. He seized his hat and went instantly to a neighbor's, and was shown into the parlor, with the information that neither the master nor mistress were at home. He told the servant that he wanted neither, and requested that the housekeeper be sent to him. She came, and the gentleman thus addressed her:

"Sarah, I have known you for many years, and have just been told that I want a wife. You are the only woman I know that I should be willing to entrust my happiness with, and if you agree, we will be instantly married.

What is your answer?"
Sarah knew the man that addressed her, and knew that his offer was serious, and as well weighed as though considered for a year, and she answered him in the same spirit.

"I agree."

Will you be ready in an hour?"

"I will."

"I shall return for you at that time." Which he did, the gentleman who had suggested the idea accompanying him to the clergyman's. Many years have passed since then, and neither party has seen any cause to regret the abrupt proposal and acceptance.

HUMAN OVERWORK.—The majority of the fatal diseases arising from overwork are now discovered. Give a could get anything that was ever made food, and he is the victim of diarrhœa and dysentary. Give him overwork and bad air and bad food, and he is the victim of typus. Give him over-work and bad air, and he is the victim of consumption. Gim him over men-tal work, with whatever air and what-ever food, and he is the victim of brain disease, and of one or other of its sequences; insanity, paralysis, diabetes, premature death in any case; death by suicide not unfrequently. Give him overwork purely physical, with air, with food, and the laboring heart, trying to keep up against its weariness, succumbs; and so the overworked smith, boatman, or wood-heaver, falls suddenly, not more honored than the write fielder of to day ored than the prize-fighter of to-day, or the fleet slave and gladiator of a Richardson.

A Scory about THE GLAY FAMILY.—
The Cincinnati Enquirer tells the following story: "When the great statesman, Henry Clay, was living, he purchased a farm in Kentucky for his son Thomas, and stocked and prepared it thoroughly for his use. After a few years' residence on the farm, Thomas wrote to his father for more money—that his farm, needed important improvements, and he had not the where with to procure what he needed. Mr. Clay replied to the effect that as he (Thomas) had squandered the means he had given him in preparing the farm for his use, he should now go to _____. Thomas replied, in a brief letter to his father, as follows. This letter is now with a friend in this city, and may be given to the Sanitary Fair: " MY DEAR FATHER : Your kind letter of-inst. is before me. I have perused and digested its contents, and am obliged to return you my warmest gratitude for the kindly admonition it contains. The destination you direct me to go will be strange to me, and I have deemed it the part of a dutiful son to request of you a letter of intro-

"' Hoping soon to hear from you, I remain your most obedient and dutiful THOMAS CLAY."

GENERAL GRANT IN A HORSE TRADE .-A few Congressmen on the train today entered into a conversation about the merits of different generals in our army, in the course of which one of them told the following story about General Grant:

"I knew Ulysses Grant when he was a little boy. We used to go to school together, near Georgetown, Brown county, Ohio. The boys used to plague him dreadfully about a horse trade he once made. When he was about twelve years old, his father sent him a few miles into the country to buy a horse from a man named Ralston. The old man told Ulysses to offer Ralston fifty dollars, at first; if he wouldn't take that, to offer fiftyfive dollars, and to go as high as sixty dollars, if no less would make the purchase. The embryotic major general started off with these instructions fully impressed upon his mind. He called upon Mr. Ralston, and told him he wished to buy the horse."

"How much did your father tell you to give for him?" was a very natural inquiry from the owner of the steed.

"Why," said Ulysses, "he told me to offer you fifty dollars, and if that wouldn't do, to give you fifty-five dollars, and if you wouldn't toke loss. lars, and if you wouldn't take less than sixty dollars, to give you that."

"Of course, sixty dollars was the lowest figure, and, on payment of that amount, the animal became the property of the young Napoleon."—Exchange.

AN AMERICAN INNKERPER, -Old Rowe kept a hotel, where he used to say one human being overwork and deficient to eat. One day, in came a Yankee, food, and he is the victim of diarrheea who asked old Rowe what he could give him for dinner.

"Anything, sir, from a pickled elephant to a canary bird's tongue."

"Wall," said the Yankee, eyeing Rowe, "I guess I'll take a piece of pickled elephant."

"Well, we've got 'em all ready right here in the house, but you'll have to take a whole un, 'cause we never cut

The Yankee thought he would take some codfish and potatoes.

A son of the Emerald Isle, once riding to market with a sack of potatoes before him, discovered that the horse was getting tired, whereupon he dismounted, put the potatoes on his shoulders, and again mounted, saying, It was better that he should carry past and more barbarious age .- Dr. the praties, he was fresher than the poor baste."

HEAD-QUARTERS, DISTRICT OF UTAR, Camp Douglas, U. T., March 1st, 1864.

CIRCULAR :

The undersigned has received numerous letters of complaint and inquiry from parties within and without the District, the former alleging that certain residents of Utah Territory indulge in threats and menaces against miners and others deairous of prospecting for precious metals, and the latter asking what, if any, protection will be accorded to those coming hither to develop the mineral resources of the country.

Without giving undue importance to the thoughtless or reckless words of misguided, prejudiced, or bad-hearted men who may be guilty of such threats as those referred to, and indulging the hope that they are but individual expressions rather than memaces, issued by any presumed or presumptuous authority whatsoever, the undersigned takes occasion to repeat what no loyal citizen will gainsay, that this Territory is the public property of the Nation, whose wish it is, that it be developed at the earliest possible day, in all its rich resources, mineral as well as agricultaral, pastoral and mechanical. To this end, citizens of the United States, and all desirous of becoming such, are freely invited by public law and national policy, to come hithsirous of becoming such, are freely invited by public law and national policy, to come hith-er to enrich themselves and advance the gen-eral welfare from out the public store, which a bountful Providence has scattered through these richly laden mountains and fertile plains The mines are thrown open to the hardy and industrious, and it is announced, that they will receive the amplest protection in life, property and rights, against aggression from whatsoever source, Indian or white.

The undersigned has abundant reason to know that the mountains of Utah, north, south, east and west, are prolific of mineral wealth. Gold, silver, iron, copper, lead and coal, are found in almost every direction, in quantities which premise the richest results to the adventurous explorer and the industrious miner.

In giving assurance of entire protection to all who may come hither to prospect for mines, the undersigned wishes at this time mines, the undersigned wisnes at this time most earnestly, and yet firmly, to warn all, whether permanent residents or not of the Territory, that should violence be offered, or attempted to be offered to miners in the pursuit of their lawful occupation, the offender or offenders, one or many, will be tried as public ememies, and punished to the utmost extent of married law. extent of martial law.

The undersigned does not wish to indulge in useless threats, but desires most fully and explicitly to apprise all of their rights, and warn misguided men of the inevitable result, should they seek to obstruct citizens in those rights, or throw obstacles in the way of the development of the public domain. While miners will be thus protected, they must un-derstand, that no interference with the vested rights of the people of the Territory will be tolerated, and they are expected to conform in all things to the laws of the land which recognize in their fullest extent the claims of the bona fide settler on public lands.

While the troops have been sent to this district to protect from a savage foe the homes and premises of the settlers, and the public interests of the nation, they are also here to interests of the nation, they are also here to preserve the public peace, secure to all the inestimable blessings of liberty, and preserve intact, the honor, dignity and rights of the citizen, vested by a free Constitution, and which belong to the humblest equally with the highest in the land. This, their mission, it is the duty of the undersigned to see fulfilled by kindly and warning words, if possible, but if not, still to be enforced at every hazard and at any cost. He cannot permit the public peace and the welfare of all, to be jeoparded by the foolish threats or wicked actions of a few.
